

House Division on Rights Bill Appears Cleared

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Allen D. Tamm, top Republican on the House Rules Committee, said today that differences blocking House action on civil rights legislation appear to have been pretty well ironed out.

As House Republicans appeared ready to stage a strategic retreat from their all-or-nothing stand for President Eisenhower's civil rights program, Allen told reporters.

"I think the Rules Committee will meet next Monday or Tuesday to act on the bill. I think things have been pretty well ironed out, and I think we will adjourn with a bill."

Allen's statement strengthened reports that leaders were nearing an agreement to bring the stalled bill to the floor of the House for a vote late next week.

The Rules Committee thus far has been blocking action. But with the four Republican members and four Northern Democrats voting together as a majority of the 12-member committee, the bill could be sent to the floor.

Just before Allen talked with newsmen, Republican civil rights leaders in the House put off a strategy conference.

By B. L. LIVINGSTONE

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Republicans appeared ready today to beat a strategic retreat in the civil rights war of maneuver.

House GOP Leader Martin Dies (Tex.) scheduled a morning strategy conference with the four Republican members of the Rules Committee amid preliminary indications they might join up with House Democrats to get action before adjournment.

This would almost necessarily mean Republican acceptance of the Senate-passed bill with a jury trial provision narrowed to voting rights cases only.

Republicans have been working in secret to a Senate House conference where they hoped to revise it more to President Eisenhower's liking. But they have run into a stalemate.

Late yesterday Rep. Keating (N.Y.), administration's civil rights spokesman in the House, announced that rather than no bill at all, he would prefer the Senate bill limited to voting rights cases.

That has been the aim of House Democrats who favor civil rights legislation.

Rep. Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania, another GOP civil rights backer, also indicated a last-resort willingness to get behind the Democratic bill in a move to clear it through the Rules Committee, which now is blocking any action.

Once on the floor, the bill would face a concerted GOP effort to have it changed along administration lines. In this event, the solid Southern House bloc might hold the balance of voting power.

The switch in Republican strategy, nonetheless, was regarded as a major break in the civil rights deadlock, and a move that conceivably could lead to passage of some form of civil rights legislation this session.

As passed by the Senate, the bill would grant defendants the right of jury trial in criminal convictions resulting from violations of federal court injunctions. The provision would extend into all areas of law, including labor injunctions.

It is this provision which Northern Democrats seek to limit to voting cases.

Hemophilla Victim Can Get Teeth Pulled

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Fred House can have his teeth pulled now.

Fred, 39, has hemophilla, excessive bleeding from even minor wounds. His doctors said Tuesday he'd have to wait until 10 p.m. of Type A-negative blood were available before the teeth could be extracted.

After Fred's plight was publicized, more than enough offers were made.

They came from a woman in Maryland, a truck driver in New York, a Hamilton, N.Y., man, a soldier at nearby Ft. Knox and numerous persons here. The Red Cross said the out-of-state offers, although appreciated, would not be needed.

Hodges Says He Has Taken Enough

By CHARLES WHALEN

CHESTER, Ill. (AP) — Orville Hodges took a long look back today on his first year in prison and observed plaintively, "I've been pushed enough."

"This year has seemed like 10 years," said Hodges, choking back the tears. "There's only one thing I think about in here—getting out. It's been awful and sometimes I get so lonesome."

The once flamboyant Illinois state auditor shook his head and said, "I still don't know what happened in the mammoth state check cashing swindle which crashed down on him and sent him to Menard Penitentiary for 12 to 15 years."

"I'm not blaming anyone for my troubles," he added.

Hodges won't be eligible for parole consideration for another six years and three months, leaving executive clemency as the only avenue to freedom before that seriously considered asking the governor for leniency.

Hodges holds a $7.50-a-month job running the prison's radio system, put on by the inmates.

In disk jockey fashion, he also spins records to meet requests of the 2,300 convicts. Occasionally, he has done some announcing at prison ball games.

State Packers Plan Puerto Rico Plant

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — A group of Little Rock packers will establish a 3-million-dollar packing plant in Puerto Rico.

The Economic Development Administration said yesterday it had signed contracts with the Little Rock Packing Co., which will finance the new plant with aid from the Puerto Rican Industrial Development Co.

A 10-year tax-free period will be allowed to the new concern which expects to start operations within a year.

The venture is backed by Chris Finkbeiner, president and general manager of the Little Rock Packing Co., the Robert E. Goff Grocery Wholesale Co. of Little Rock, and Joe and Otto Finkbeiner, also of the Little Rock Packing Co.

Believes Women Secretly Are Afraid of Cigars

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — One of the odd facts about those odd creatures known as women is that they are secretly afraid of cigars.

They may deny it, but it's so. Ask the average woman who says she hates cigars what her objection is to them, and she'll reply, "Oh, they smell terrible and they make the men who smoke them look simply revolting."

Then, assuming an air of balanced feminine tolerance—which is about as unbalanced as a human being can get—she'll add:

"Now, I don't mind cigarettes, and it's a pleasure to a woman to see the fun a man gets out of a pipe. But cigars? No! They're nasty. I don't see why any man wants to smoke them."

And what is the real truth? The real truth is that she doesn't hate cigars because they are messy or smell up the house—but because she is afraid of them.

And why? Because a little old cigar is a potential rival. Because, in this woman-dominated world, it is a subtle weapon by which a man can seek to regain his equal rights. Because it can give a man something a woman often can't—a feeling of serene power.

"A good cigar," wrote E. G. Bulwer-Lytton, "is as great a comfort to a man as a good cry to a woman."

Summing up the situation even better in one of the most terribly accurate lines in English literature, Rudyard Kipling said: "A woman is only a woman, but a good cigar is a smoke."

ALC Demands Tech School Be Built at L. R.

LITTLE ROCK (UP) — The legislative Council in a surprise resolution today ordered the State Board of Education to locate the first vocational-technical school in Little Rock.

The council also ordered an immediate study of the Arkansas Highway department's current financial bills.

Rep. John Bethell of Prairie county, one of the ringleaders in passing the vocational school bill in the 1937 legislature, introduced the resolution. The legislature had appropriated $500,000 for construction of the first school.

Bethell, who said he had only recently returned from the East, told the council he was shocked to find the State Board of Education had whittled the list of proposed sites for the school to Camden, Pine Bluff and Magnolia.

"It was the intent of the committee that did the initial studies on the schools and the legislature that the first school be located at Little Rock," Bethell said.

The state Education board plans to visit the three sites still in competition for the school Monday and then make its selection.

Bethell said the law set forth several factors to be used in determining where the first school should be located, including population, industrial need, geographical location, an bids.

"Population and industrial need, as well as geographical location leave Little Rock alone," he said.

The Prairie county representative said it appeared the board only considered bids in making its determination.

"That's fine, but not as the sole factor," he said. "It should be used only when population and industrial need are equal. Then if a town or a community wants to put up money or donate land, that's fine."

Bethell was joined by Rep. Virgil Fletcher of Saline county, who told the council that only in Little Rock can the most persons be served the earliest.

Rayburn Hints Rights Bill to Be Enacted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Speaker of the House Rayburn (D-Tex.) predicted today a civil rights bill will be enacted before Congress adjourns, and hinted that House action on the bill would come next week.

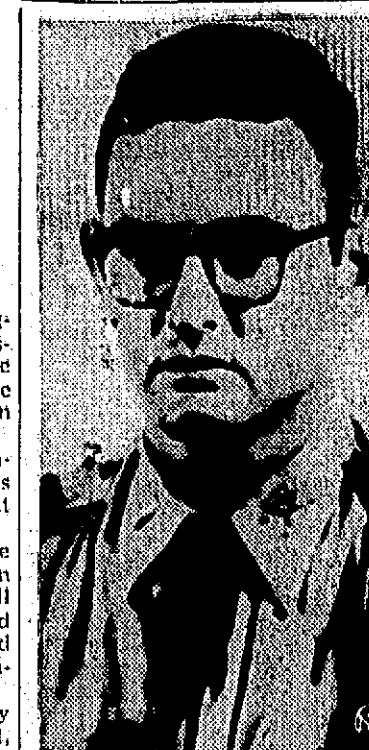

Rayburn told newsmen he did not know exactly what kind of compromise has been worked out. There were signs, however, that Republicans and Democrats had reached an agreement on a bill containing a modified jury trial amendment.

Rayburn said he expects the Rules Committee to clear the bill soon for House action and added that the bill will get top priority.

Key GOP figures in the House fight put off a strategy session amid talk the Republicans were making a strategic retreat from an all-or-nothing stand for the kind of measure President Eisenhower has asked.

Shortly afterwards Rep. Leo Allen of Illinois, senior Republican on the Rules Committee and one of the Little Rock Packing Co.

Says English Is Supporting James Hoffa

By NORMAN WALKER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Well-posted labor sources say that John F. English—the man picked by the AFL-CIO to clean up the Teamsters Union's dirty linen—is supporting James R. Hoffa for Teamsters president.

Hoffa, Midwest Teamsters boss, is under fire from the Senate Rackets Committee for allegedly joining with New York hoodlums to elect Hoffa's man to head the city's Teamsters affairs.

The 68-year-old English, veteran Teamsters Union national secretary-treasurer, was reached at Chicago, where he's attending an AFL-CIO Executive Council meeting. He declined to discuss his reported support for Hoffa.

But competent sources said English's support just about clinches Hoffa's election at the Teamsters convention in late September. He would take over the Teamsters presidency from Dave Beck, whose use of "union funds for personal projects" was aired by the Senate probes earlier this year.

When the AFL-CIO ousted Beck as vice president and Executive Council member last May, English was chosen to replace him. George Meany, AFL-CIO president, reportedly English assured the Executive Council at that time: "We're going to wash out our dirty linen. You and the rest of American labor are going to be proud of us again."

But only yesterday Meany said in Chicago the Teamsters Union, since English made no progress toward ridding its ranks of corruption.

"I don't think it is any cleaner than it was then," Meany said.

English and Hoffa were reliably reported to have gotten together.

Teamsters Haven't Cleaned Skirts

CHICAGO (AP) — The president of the AFL-CIO yesterday said the Teamsters Union has failed to polish its tarnished record, but cautioned against any restrictive labor legislation that might result from Senate rackets investigations.

In the closing session of the four-day AFL-CIO Executive Council meeting, President George Meany told newsmen he doesn't think the Teamsters' linen is any cleaner now than it has been.

Meany was critical of proposals for restrictive labor legislation in the wake of the Senate Rackets Committee hearings.

"I feel a great many of the things that have come before the committee are covered by laws now on the books," he said.

If laws against thieves had been enforced, he said, a lot of these men wouldn't be on the witness stand but in the jailhouse.

The Teamsters' executive board is expected to meet Aug. 24 to consider possible action on AFL-CIO charges of corrupt influences against the union.

The accusation was leveled in May after Teamster President Dave Beck was accused of misusing some $400,000 in Teamster funds.

Arkansas Man Wiseracks as He Dies in Chair

By W. B. HAGSDALE JR.

ANGOLA, La. (AP) — Joseph Sheffield, wise-cracking as he was, died early today for the shotgun slaying of Deputy Sheriff John L. Walker.

The death wrote the end to a 4-year legal fight over his speedy conviction for the slaying of the brother of the Franklin Parish sheriff.

Sheffield was brought into the execution chamber at 12:05 a.m. Twelve minutes later, he was pronounced dead.

"I know there's been a lot of talk about the holding a grudge," he said in his final statement. "I have none."

Pointing to the executioner, he said, "I know he's ready to throw the switch that will end my life. But if I hold a grudge against him I'd be guilty of murder again and damned to hell fire. I want to go up above an not down below to Satan downstairs."

Sheffield walked calmly up to the chair, turned around and sat down. As the straps were tightened around his waist, he said, "Pull it tight. You've been in this business a lot longer than I have. I'll not complain."

A few seconds later, he added, "You don't give a man much chance to break out of this. It would take a giant to do that."

Then he said, "I'll try to take it the best I can. One thing about it, I'm ready to go."

Right-of-Way Blames for Highway Ills

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Chief Engineer Ward Goodman of the Arkansas Highway Department blames Arkansas' failure to commit more of its interstate highway funds on difficulties in securing rights of way.

However, Goodman said yesterday, a number of jobs are ready to be contracted and the program will advance faster now.

A U. S. Bureau of Public Roads report this week revealed that Arkansas had contracted or obligated only 48 per cent of the funds it can spend this year on interstate route construction.

Arkansas was eighth from the bottom among states in the obligation of 1937 money, the report showed.

Goodman said the Highway Department had met a "bottleneck" in trying to acquire rights of way because it negotiated to buy property instead of condemning it.

Commissioner Harry L. Parkin of Little Rock said the Highway Commission recently ordered "procedural changes" which should speed up the right of way acquisitions.

Gov. Orval Faubus, when asked yesterday to comment on Arkansas' place among other states in obligating 1937 interstate highway funds, said he could not say anything, "without the possibility of getting into a controversy with the Highway Department."

Faubus said a special session this fall would be necessary to insure a full highway construction program next year but hedged on answering the question of whether he would call it.

Faubus in a news conference late yesterday skittered around the edges of a blast at the Highway Department in answering reporters' questions.

The governor came closer to laying the blame on the department for its money troubles than ever before and said "all the facts and information should be given to the people so the people themselves will know the reason for the session and the benefits which could result from it."

A recent Associated Press poll of legislators indicated a majority of the lawmakers were cool to the idea of a special session unless a plan is given to them in advance for curbing the Highway Department's money bills.

The Highway Commission last month curtailed work, released several hundred employees and notified some contractors they could not receive pay in full beyond Aug. 15.

72 Tornadoes in First Six Months

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Weather Bureau says it counted 702 tornadoes across the country in the first half of 1937 and that sets a record. The twisters killed 130.

The worst one hit the Kansas City area May 20, killing 33 in the suburbs on the south edge of the city and seven others in nearby Kansas.

The other major storms killed 21 May at Silverton, Tex.; 10 April 2 at Dallas; 10 Jan. 22 at Gans, Okla. and 10 June 20 at Fargo, N. D.

Texas was hardest hit with 124 twisters. Oklahoma had 97, Kansas 50 and Nebraska 47.

The previous record for the first half of the year was in 1915, with 614. The Weather Bureau said intensified efforts to spot and report tornadoes may account partly for the higher 1937 figure.

Blackmail Is Charged to Confidential

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UP) — A Hollywood producer testified today he was "blackmailed" by agents of Confidential magazine who demanded $1,000 to prevent publication of a story about a wild flimflam party attended by Robert Mitchum, Charles Laughton and Elsa Lanchester.

The witness for the prosecution in the criminal libel trial of Confidential and Whisper magazines was Producer-director Paul Gregory of the stage readings "John Brown's Body" and "Don Juan in Hell."

He told the court that a woman he identified as Mrs. Marjorie Meade, one of the West Coast agents for Confidential, met with him in 1955 and told him he could "buy off" the contract of the writer of the article and it would not be published.

Gregory said she told him the article would be "scandalously injurious" to Gregory and his associates. He told her, he testified, that "this was character assassination and blackmail and I intend to report it to the proper authorities." He testified she replied that it was "not blackmail but that she was merely trying to prevent publication of an article injurious to me."

Gregory said no further contacts were made and he did not see her again until he answered the vprosecution subpoena today and recognized Mrs. Meade as one of the defendants in the case.

This, he said, makes it difficult to rock 'n' roll effect, "both musically and visually."

All-Star Cage Game Slated for Tonight

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—The first of Arkansas' two high school All-Star games will be played tonight in Barton Coliseum where East and West will come together in a basketball way.

The All-Star card will wind up tomorrow night when East and West football teams meet in War Memorial Stadium.

The rangy West cage squad will be captained by Pat Foster. He was named yesterday as starting center by head coach Horace Broom, the man who taught Foster his basketball tricks at Emerson High School.

Other West starters will be Clyde Rhoden of Hot Springs and Gary Parker of Texarkana at forwards and J. P. Lovelady of Dover and Billy Jones of El Dorado at guards.

East Coach Bob Bradbury of Jonesboro elected to start Little Rock's Harry Vines and Manila's Leonis Shedd at forward, Havis Hyatt of Hixon at center and Charles Eagle of North Little Rock and Jerry Alkison of Leachville at guard. Vines was named captain of the East squad.

The East starting team reflects an attempt by Bradbury to get his tallest men in the lineup and the has succeeded in matching height with the West's first unit. But the West has Max Lay of Mount Vernon and John Gatling of Sheridan, both 6-5, and Bruce Snel of Green Forest, 6-4, on the bench while the East's bench averages barely 6 feet.

Tipoff time is 8 p.m. The football squads will hold light drills today to wind up eight days of frenzied preparation. Both East Coach Wilson Matthews of Little Rock and West Coach Joe Ensminger said their charges have progressed as well or better than could be expected in such a short time.

Dates Fixed for Migratory Bird Hunting

By W. JOYNES MACFARLAN

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Interior Department announced today that hunting of most migratory waterfowl will be permitted between Oct. 1, 1957 and Jan. 15, 1958.

Under the department's regulations, the individual states may select specific dates within that period. The states must observe the limitation on season length set for the flyway in which they are located.

The department said the 1957-58 hunting regulations on migratory waterfowl will be substantially the same in all flyways except the Pacific. In the Pacific Flyway the season will be 15 days longer but the bag and possession limits on ducks will be reduced.

Hatfield Chilson, acting secretary, said hunters of wild ducks and geese can expect the flight this fall to be "about the same as last year."

Chilson said the 1957-58 regulations "again will give American sportsmen generous opportunities to harvest waterfowl."

For the third year in a row the Atlantic and Mississippi flyways will have a 70-day season for waterfowl and coots, and the central flyway a 75-day season on ducks and coots.

Split seasons are again offered to the states as options. However, if they are selected the usual 10 per cent penalty is imposed on permitting hunting days, except for the goose hunting season in the Central Flyway.

"Shooting hours will remain at one-half hour before sunrise to sunset in all flyways except the Mississippi, where they will be variations from state to state."

The framework within which the states may recommend open season dates on ducks, geese and coots by flyways are:

Mississippi Flyway: Alabama, Arkansas, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kentucky, Louisiana, Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, Ohio, Tennessee and Wisconsin.

States can have concurrent open seasons on waterfowl and coots of 70 consecutive full days, or two seasons totaling 63 days.

Australian Girl Seeks Another Title

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Australia's Lorraine Gapp hoped to break another American freestyle record today and Paula Jones Myers aimed for a grand slam in diving in the final of the National AAU Women's Outdoor Swimming Meet.

Gapp, 20, had won the 100-yard freestyle and 200-yard freestyle titles last night. Miss Gapp easily won the 400-yard freestyle, 1:04.8, just behind American leader, Paula Jones Myers, 1:05.6.

With four outdoor and indoor gold medals already won, Miss Myers, a 22-year-old Los Angeles star, was a strong favorite to complete the grand slam by retaining the 100-yard freestyle title she won in 1955.

Myers entered the final day with a record of 1:04.0 in 100-yard freestyle.

CHAPTER XXIX

Peterson said, "You . . . you don't understand marshal. To you, this is just a matter of getting Dorsey back. To us, it's much, much more. You don't have any right to talk to me like that—not without knowing the town."

"What are you afraid of?" "Afraid?"

"Yes, this whole town, afraid. Are you foolish enough to think that a man's punch or hide hunters can keep this town alive?"

"The hide business is the life of this town."

"Sure, it is! Now! But are you so blind you think it can go on forever?"

"I saw a herd out there on the prairie today as big as any I've ever seen."

"Yes," Blanchard said, "and eight bulls to a cow. And the gurus bleating from Canada down into Texas, the railroads reaching out to more hide towns like this one every day, tanneries begging for hides at good prices. You've got two or three years, Mr. Peterson, and so has this town, unless you find something better to feed on than buffalo."

There was quiet for a few seconds. Then Blanchard said, "You're wrong, Mr. Peterson, dead wrong. In five years, there'll be enough homesteaders along this river to give this town a cold footing. They'll need this town. This prairie is due to be plowed up, just like up north. Blue Springs doesn't have to be afraid."

"I don't know, marshal. Maybe you're right. All I know for sure is that our trouble started when you came to town."

"Your trouble started the first day you saw those Clements. You let men like that get a jump on you and they don't know where to stop. You've got to show them where."

"It got so interesting I stepped back inside. Peterson was standing behind my desk. I could see the cigar smoldering in his hand and ashes dropping to the floor."

"What can I do?" Blanchard looked at me, like he wanted me to say something. I didn't know what to say. I shrugged. Peterson was troubled. I could see his back wasn't near so stiff now, his hand not so steady.

Blanchard said, "You wanted to deal with Pike. Deal with me."

Peterson put out the cigar, not that he smoked, on a corner of the desk. "I don't think I could deal with you."

"Try," Blanchard said. "Listen. I want you to do what you should have done a long time ago. This town has got to stand solid against the Clements."

"That's insane."

"No. They wouldn't have taken Dorsey off that train in the first place if they'd had anything to fear from the town. You had a good marshal, from all I hear. All you'd had to do was give McNabb some backing."

"I won't argue that," Peterson said. "That's done."

"But the rule is still good. Maybe it's not too late. You could carry the town with you. Or drive it ahead of you, like you've been doing. This town has got to make a stand against the Clements, before it's too late."

"That would open open war."

"No. I have reason to believe they're edgy now. I'm thinking they might bring Dorsey back to me. They bought more than they can pay for. If the town got its back up now, it might tip it our way."

Peterson walked to a window and looked out across the tracks at the loaded bone racks. I wondered what he saw there. He said, "Then . . . what then? What if they bring him back?"

"Then I take him and go. The trouble is over."

"Without punishment for the ones who look him?"

"Both parties to a bargain got to have something to trade. They've got Dorsey. To get him I've got to give up something. So, after I leave, I'm willing to pretend that nothing happened. I leave with Dorsey."

"I see," Peterson said. "Of course, you're a marshal. You have your reason for being here. But you do have your gun. Suppose the town made

Iceberg Session Apparently Over

BOSTON (AP)—Mariners traversing the Atlantic shipping lanes can breathe easier for a few months. The iceberg season is over.

"The iceberg" season this year was longer than usual. Captain Kenneth S. Davis of the Coast Guard, commander of the International Ice Patrol, said today.

"It normally lasts from mid-March to mid-July. This year it began in mid-February and ended officially Aug. 10."

The patrol logged a record 887 bergs this season, Capt. Davis said. In an average season, 896 are sighted and charted.

For the Coast Guard, however, the logging of the last berg does not mean the end of the work.

When the last berg has been logged, all the information is turned over to a team of five coastguardmen and a civilian oceanographer at Woods Hole, Mass.

The last berg charted this season was "a whopper, more than 800 feet long and 200 feet wide," Capt. Davis said.

While no Giant official has confirmed reported details of the San Francisco offer, none has denied that the bid, in addition to the eight-million-dollar stadium, includes:

1. A rental fee figured at 7 per cent of gross attendance each year.

2. Club control of concessions.

3. City control of parking facilities.

Lack of Hits Proves Fatal to Cardinals

By JIM VAN VALKENBURG

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Did a "one-man bench" cause the sudden and almost total collapse of the St. Louis Cardinals?

Stunned by a nine-game losing streak, fans and newsmen looking for the reason have nominated Manager Fred Hutchinson's Joe Cunningham as the "one-man bench."

Cunningham, a left-handed batter from New Jersey, has been just about the only man Hutch could rely on for help. Hutchinson has two catchers—Hal Smith and Hobie Landritsch, but otherwise it has been a case of Seven Iron Horses and Cunningham.

The iron horses simply have run out of gas.

Ten days ago the Redbirds led both leagues in team hitting, and more runs than any club except Cincinnati, and led the National League.

This same team has scored only 13 runs in nine games since then and only once did it come close to victory. That was in a 4-3 defeat to the seventh-place Chicago Cubs, who have taken six of the nine games in the St. Louis losing streak.

On Aug. 6, Cardinal fans were trying to find ways of getting tickets to the first St. Louis World Series in 11 years. Now the club is 8½ games out as it opens a four-game series at Milwaukee and a lot of folks won't even talk about them.

The collapse isn't as sudden as it sounds. The present hitting slump actually is 22 games old.

Some observers, aware the iron horses were wearing thin, saw it coming. While winning election as president of Joint Council 1 and supplanted him with John O'Rourke was backed by Hoffa.

Such a deal would double the club's present radio-television income, Stoneham said.

It's this prospective wealth of TV, plus an indicated golden gate at the Golden Gate, which has made Stoneham, despite family ties with New York, a believer in San Francisco.

He plans a trip to San Francisco soon after Monday's meeting to check further details in the franchise transfer and inspect Seals Stadium, where the Giants are expected to play until the new stadium is finished in 1959.

While no Giant official has confirmed reported details of the San Francisco offer, none has denied that the bid, in addition to the eight-million-dollar stadium, includes:

Prospects for Rights Action Dim in House

By B. L. LIVINGSTONE

WASHINGTON (AP)—Prospects faded still more today for quick House action on the stalemated civil rights bill.

As tyroed civil rights leaders hunted ways out of the House deadlock, Rep. Howard W. Smith (D-Va.) moved into position to block immediate efforts to get the bill before the House.

Smith, trusty 74-year-old leader of the little band of Southerners battling civil rights legislation, is chairman of the Rules Committee, which controls legislative traffic in the House.

In that post, Smith can delay action on the bill at least until after Labor Day—well past the target date for adjournment of Congress, where quelling fever already is running high.

Smith yesterday served notice he is taking his stand on the Dixie bridgehead to repel civil rights forces.

However, pitted against him were the power and prestige of Speaker Rayburn (D-Tex.), committed in favor of House acceptance of the Senate bill with a minor jury trial revision.

Smith and Rayburn, in their clashing positions, also have been colleagues and friends for more than a quarter century. They have been at odds before and Smith has yielded to Rayburn's wishes.

It was upon this old friendship that Rayburn's persuasiveness, strengthened by the power inherent in the speakership, that civil rights leaders were banking heavily.

They predicted that in the end, with the chips down, Smith would yield to old friend. But they conceded it might take some time.

After a strategy huddle with key Southern leaders, Smith told reporters he hadn't made up his mind yet whether to yield to Rayburn's pleas to let the House act on the Senate-passed bill with its jury trial amendment.

Acknowledging that Rayburn had asked him to call together his committee as the requisite first step to break the stalemate, Smith said: "I haven't decided what to do about it. I am just going to consider it, see if it is worthwhile."

"I don't want to do a futile thing if there's not going to be any result. If it is not going to amount to anything,"

and Rayburn's persuasiveness, strengthened by the power inherent in the speakership, that civil rights leaders were banking heavily.

After a strategy huddle with key Southern leaders, Smith told reporters he hadn't made up his mind yet whether to yield to Rayburn's pleas to let the House act on the Senate-passed bill with its jury trial amendment.

Acknowledging that Rayburn had asked him to call together his committee as the requisite first step to break the stalemate, Smith said: "I haven't decided what to do about it. I am just going to consider it, see if it is worthwhile."

"I don't want to do a futile thing if there's not going to be any result. If it is not going to amount to anything,"

and Rayburn's persuasiveness, strengthened by the power inherent in the speakership, that civil rights leaders were banking heavily.

They predicted that in the end, with the

Braves Lead by 8 1/2 Games, Have Little to Fear

By ED WILKS
Of The Associated Press

With 41 games to go and an 8 1/2-game lead, Milwaukee's Braves have nothing to fear but fear itself.

And maybe, the Chicago Cubs.
All the Braves have in worry about now that they've won 11 in a row after last night's 8-1 victory at Cincinnati, is the haunting 1956 season, when they won 11 straight, had a 5 1/2 game edge and then blew it in the last week as Brooklyn won the pennant by one game.

And they also must be remembering the 1951 season, when even Brooklyn's old pros couldn't hold a 13 1/2 game August lead and were beaten in a pennant playoff by the New York Giants.

The Braves are back home tonight for the first of a four-game series with the St. Louis Cardinals whose slump is every bit as surprising and sudden as Milwaukee's surge. The Cardinals lost their ninth in a row, their longest skid since 1947—with a 4-1 setback at Chicago. The seventh place Cubs now are 4-7 over the Cards—and have beaten the Braves in 7 of 13.

Brooklyn stayed in third place, also 8 1/2 game and within one percentage point of St. Louis as the Dodgers twice blew leads and lost to the Giants 9-4 in the only other NL game scheduled.

In the American, the New York Yankees went 5 1/2 ahead again, defeating Boston 6-3, although Ted Williams pushed his average to
.398, while the Sox gave up five unearned runs and lost to Cleveland
5-4. Kansas City whipped Detroit
7-2 in the only other game.

Hank Aaron, the NL's bat leader, hammered across five runs with a pair of homers as the Braves swung to 12 hits, Eddie Mathews, and ex-Redleg Bob Haz-
le also homered for Milwaukee.

Warren Spahn won his 13th with an eight-hitter, losing a shutout on an unearned run in the last inning. Spahn got a four-run cushion in the first that chased Hal Joffcoat.

Bob Turley won his fifth in a row for a 10-3 record, but needed
Bob Grim's relief when Frank Malzone's home run junked Wilson's shutout in the eighth. Loser Nixon held the Yankees to three hits, one of them Elston Howard's home run, for six frames. Gil McDougal drove in three runs, and hit a two-run homer in the eighth to clinch it.

The Indians shook their six-game losing string in the sixth when southpaw Jack Karsman walked one run home, then gave up a grand slammer to Chico Car-rasquel that wiped out a 3-0 White Sox lead. Don Mossi went all the way to win his ninth.

Dale Long's home run and Bob Speake's two-run single nailed the Cubs ninth victory in 12 games in the second as Sam Jones lost his seventh. Rookie Moe Drabowsky won his ninth with a six-hitter.

Rookie Valmy Thomas drove in four runs with a triple and homer for the Giants as Ramon Montant, third of four pitchers, won his first. Three runs in the sixth, two unearned, did it. Don Drysdale, Brooklyn's top winner with 10, lost his seventh.

Woody Held, Billy Martin and Hee Lopez homered for the A's as Jack Urban won his second.
Jim Bunning, who has won 14,
lost his fifth, second to Kansas City.

Arkansan Leads
in Golf Match

SUMTER, S. C. —With the field reduced to the low 30, L. L.
Miller Barber carried a 3-stroke lead into today's third round of the Air Force World Wide Golf Tournament.

Barber of Texarkana, Tex., and the Perrin Air Force Base in Texas, fired his second sub par round in a row over the 6,500-yard Shaw AFB course yesterday to run his 36-hole score to 126.
Barber, 20, equaled a competitive course record of 30 in his opening round, then added a one-under par 70 yesterday.

Sgt. Al Langsdorf, playing out of Hickam Field, Hawaii, whose 68 was the best round turned in during a rain-sprinkled afternoon yesterday, was in second place with 129.

The field was cut in half after yesterday's play, with 154 being the cutoff point. All pre-tourney favorites were still around, however, including Lt. Hillman Robbins, the Walker Cup team member, whose 78 yesterday gave him a two-day total of 149, well out of reach of the sizzling Barber. Robbins is a Memphis, Tenn., native now stationed at the Blythe Village, Ark., Air Force Base.

Tears

Oh, the power of tears! At times they are more lovely than her smiles. The damaged finger is a major catastrophe in this child's life. Trust is radiant in her eyes. A mother was near to lessen the pain from the misfortune. Perhaps you too have been hurt and deep in the heart.

Did you shed a tear? Try it sometime. It might get some stories told which you could tell in no other way. You may not have a mother, but one thing sure... you do have a God.

Tears move people. They tell stories of deep meaning. Maybe the world should cry more. It would offer more opportunity for God to "come in." Then soften up and let your lacrimal glands work more freely.

Someone is waiting to kiss away every tear.

Sunday School Lesson

By WILLIAM E. GILROY, D.D.

When Farrar Fenton, the able English layman scholar, who translated the Bible into modern English (Oxford University Press) translated I Corinthians 13: "If I could speak in the language of men and angels, but have not friendship, I should become an echoing trumpet," he had at least some warrant for using "friendship." Other translators had said "charity" and "love."

For Jesus had bellowed that word "friendship" when He called His disciples "friends" (John 15:15).

I suppose there is always a question of exact meaning in translating a word. English words for those of Greek or Hebrew may be an approximation, but much scholarship gives assurance that the reader of the English Bible has a reasonably accurate rendering of what the sacred writers wrote.

In any case, the English Bible has an authority of its own, and its English words define moral and spiritual realities of their full value for those who read only in English. In this respect the word "friendship" may have all the meaning to which Jesus gave it as He spoke to His disciples.

The examples of friendship are many, and two have been outstanding in literature and tradition. In the Bible it is the friendship between Jonathan and David. In the secular world it is the friendship of Damon and Pythias.

I suppose that in the language of today such friendships would be described in terms of "pals" or "buddies." The latter term at least would have strong emphasis and meaning in the light of the war experiences that brought men together in times of stress and danger.

How deep and lasting are the friendships of today? One could not answer with any accuracy or authority. But I am inclined to think that the trend is toward individualism and self-sufficiency, rather than toward relationships of mutual trust.

Men who are as much together in daily business life as buddies

Reports Move for New L. R. Airport

LITTLE ROCK — A real estate man said today a move is under way by private interests to build a six million dollar airport near Rock's Adams Field.

Erwin F. Jones said Adams Field is "obsolete."

He said he has nearly 4,000 acres of land under option between Higgins and Wrightsville off U.S. Highway 65, about six miles from downtown Little Rock.

In war are often in open or secret conflict, sparring for place or power. In my morning paper as I write is the front page story of some conspiring to oust others in a large organization. Even in professional circles such rivalry, destructive of possible friendship, is not uncommon.

Religious circles, even, are not crest conflict, sparring for place and authority. This is true as increasing bureaucracy in church organizations makes emphasis on authority more pronounced.

However, I think it is in the churches and church circles that true friendships are most commonly found, deepest and most lasting. We hear much of church quarrels, and they are often played up in the newspapers, but the great steady stream of angels friendship that binds members of a church to one another are not made so evident.

As a former pastor of four churches in widely varying communities I can bear witness to this. Later, as an editor, I have seen some disgraceful exhibitions of rivalry among denominational leaders, though the great majority of such leaders have been truly Christian.

But of the churches I can say that when the members sing "Blest be the ties that bind our hearts in Christian love" they mean it, and practice it. That is what makes church life so rich and true.
